

TRIED
TO SPEND A MILLION BUT MIND AND BODY

WERE WRECKED BEFORE SMITH SUCCEEDED.

NOW ON WAY TO SANITARIUM.

Ernest Smith Inherited Hundred Thousand Dollars, Speculated, and Went Too Fast a Pace.

Chicago, March 6.—Wrecked mentally and physically, Ernest F. Smith, 40 years of age, is today being brought to Chicago from Hot Springs, Ark., in care of several police. Smith's condition is due to an effort to spend $1, 000,000 before he died.

After the death of the elder Smith
the son received less than $100,000, but he handled it with such skill on the New York Stock Exchange that he was soon a millionaire. Friends asked him to quit but he would not. He wanted a million to spend and a million to keep intact. He still continued to speculate and soon had $2,000,000. He married and then started in to spend half his fortune. The pace was too fast and his mind and body collapsed.
He will be taken to the Wisconsin sanitarium.

ENGINES HIT

And a Bad Wreck Followed But Wires
Are Down and Details of the Affair are Lacking.

Pittsburg, March 6.—Early this morning a local passenger south bound and a through freight going north met in a head on collision at Edgely, on the Allegheny Valley, 22 miles north of Pittsburg. All traffic on the road has been blocked since that time. Few details of the wreck are learned as all the wires are down.

The only report received states that both engines were destroyed and that both engine crews saved themselves
by jumping, several persons being injured. It is also reported that one man was killed. He was driving along the river wagon road which is close to the track and was killed by the wreck.

WEALTHY GIRL

STARTS AROUND WORLD TO WED MAN SHE NEVER SAW.

Daisy Smith, Society Girl of Elwood, Starts for Manila with Six Trunks
in Answer to an "Ad."

Elwood, Ind., March 6.—Daisy Smith, a wealthy society girl, who is giving up home, friends and society to travel across the world, that she may marry a man she never saw, left on her long journey last night. Her brother accompanies her to San Francisco, whence she will proceed alone.
Never having seen her lover, she has adopted a novel plan of recognition
when they meet. When the vessel heaves to in the bay of Manila, Miss Smith will don her wedding tressou.
A piece of the dress having previously been sent to the bridegroom he will know his bride the moment she starts
down the gang plank.

Miss Smith first learned of her lover, E. C. Glover, through an advertisement in a daily paper and answered it in fun, little thinking that later she would travel thousands of miles to marry the man she was then writing to in a spirit of mischief. It required six large steamer trunks to carry Mrs.
Smith's wardrobe.

Brewers Assessed.

Indianapolis, Ind., March 6.—An assessment of $400 a week will be made on the different brewers unions of this city for the aid of the striking brewers at Cincinnati, to be continued until the strike is at an end, and an agreement has been signed. There are 400 members in different unions in this city and each member will be assessed $1 per week.

H. C. Devine of Mt. Vernon, was in the city on Wednesday on business.

DISCOVER NUGGETS
IN CHICKENS' CROPS.

Chicago, March 6.—Nuggets of gold weighing from a quarter of an ounce
to one ounce were found in the crops
of chickens and ducks in South Water street today. The fowls were shipped from Fildfield, Wis., a little town on the Wisconsin Central railway.

The ducks and chickens were received by one of the commission merchants along South Water street and the discovery of the precious metal was made by his helpers when they killed the fowls for market.

The commission men express the opinion that there must be gold in considerable quantities about the bottoms near Fildfield. There were three dozen fowls in the lot and in the crops
of every one of these, one or more particles of gold were discovered, 41 pieces in all being found. The aggregate weight of the entire amount is six and one-half ounces.

SIGNAL CORPS

EXPERIMENTING IN WIRELESS
TELEPHONY.

Claimed that Officers Have Succeeded in Sending Wireless Messages
Upwards of 400 Feet.

Washington, D. C., March 6.—Without any desire for publicity the United States Signal Corps has been for some weeks experimenting with wireless telephone communications. It is claimed that its officers have succeeded in sending wireless telephone messages upwards of 400 feet. These method were not in the Morse code, but in words, uttered in ordinary, clear speaking tones, such as would normally carry a distance of 30 or 40 feet at most. The distance at which these passages have been clearly heard by the latest experiments exceeds the length of two ordinary city blocks.

This achievement is regarded as highly important by the Signal Corps officials. They have been conducting experiments with wireless telephone messages for several months, but only within the last week have they succeeded in getting beyond the 400-foot mark. They regard the principle as practically demonstrated now, and look confidently to doubling the distance in the near future, with a good prospect later of placing wireless telephone messages in the same class with wireless telegraph.

General Greeley has acknowledged that officers of the corps had been experimenting with the wireless telephone for some time, and though he was inclined to be extremely reticent, he admitted that they had met with what he termed "a moderate degree of success."

The system by which these wireless telephone messages have been transmitted is very much like that employed in wireless telegraphy. The instruments used, however, are, if anything
even more delicate than those used by Marconi. The main point of distinction between the wireless telephone and wireless telegraph messages is that with the telephone message words must be reproduced instead of dots and dashes.

The Signal Corps officers regard the possibilities of wireless telephoning
as of even greater value to the army
than wireless telegraphy.

"It is the duty of the corps," said an officer, "to perfect all systems of communication for use in the field, so as to be able to send clearly audible messages from one point to another even though an enemy occupies a position between our forces. With this end in view we are constantly experimenting, and we feel now that we have struck a lead that will prove of the utmost importance. If the principle on which we have succeeded to this extent can be applied to still greater distances—and we now feel confident that it can—we have struck something which will revolutionize modern methods of communication.
As to its application to commercial and other lines, it is obvious that what proves successful for our purposes must also be of great value in other directions."

The system by which these wireless telephone messages have been sent is said to be the conception of signal corps officers. The work will be diligently continued.

BOSTON

NOW HAS HONOR OF SEEING THE PRINCE

PEOPLE OF WORCESTER HOWE-VER, ARE INDIGNANT.

HAD SOUVENIRS AND SMILES

For Henry But Train Didn't Stop to Receive Committee—Prince at Niagara and Elsewhere.

Boston, March 6.—Prince Henry arrived this morning at 9:40. The people of Worcester are indignant. They telegraphed the train last night that Mayor and a committee would meet the Prince at Springfield and come to Worcester with him. The train reached Springfield. The Mayor and committee were there, ready with a handsome souvenir and welcoming smiles, but much to their disgust they were not allowed to come aboard. The train went through Worcester without stopping.

The Prince's party reached the Hotel Somerset at 10:20. The corridors of the hotel were crowded with the lites of the Hub as His Highness passed to the parlor on the first floor.

A murmured cheer from the fashionable gathering greeted the Prince and a few minutes later Governor Crane
and Mayor Collins made their official call. The Prince said: "How do you do?" and again the escort was formed and the party entered carriages and at 10:30 drove off to the State House
to return the Governor's call.

MASONIC EMBLEM FOR PRINCE.

Boston, March 6.—During his visit to this city Prince Henry will be given a Masonic emblem of much value.
The souvenir will be presented during his banquet at the Hotel Somerset by Vorshtupful Master Hanser, of German-
2 lodge.

The donor is Mrs. P. C. Goodwin, who wishes as a typical American woman
to present the gift as an expression of American good will to Ber-many.

The emblem is in the form of a square and compass. The gold alone and the diamonds with which it is studded are said to be valued at $10, 000.

The gold for the emblem came from a nugget found by Mrs. Goodwin's husband while a "forty-niner." Mr. Goodwin was for 53 years a Mason, and for 5 years Grand Treasurer of Connecticut.

PRINCE'S PROGRAM.

Boston, March 6.—Prince Henry
will leave Boston tomorrow morning at 2 o'clock for Albany. He goes to West Point at 2 p. m. and goes to New York where he will dine at the University club at 8 p. m. Saturday he will spend in rest and recreation.

LAST VISITING DAY.

New York, March 6.—Today is the last visiting day of the Hohenzollern people holding passes from the German consul. The officers of the yacht were entertained last night by the Deutscher Verein.

PRINCE AT NIAGARA.

Rochester, N. Y., March 6.—Prince
Henry traveled from Chicago to Niagara Falls crossed the Canadian fronter for a brief stay, during which he was officially welcomed by the Dominion and resumed his journey last night
bound for Boston.

His longest stop in almost thirty years of continuous traveling was at Niagara Falls, which he saw bridged
by the ice. He viewed the Horseshoe falls from Table Rock, the American Falls from the ledge over the whirlpool on the Canadian shore. He drove to a point below the lower whirlpool and there inspected the plant of the Niagara Power company, which converts the force of nature to the purposes of commerce. He was much impressed by the falls, and as he stood on Table Rock looking across
at the Horseshoe, he said:
"It is magnificent; it is grand."
He was much impressed also by the whirling rapids down in the gorge,
and when he left his car at the whir-
pool he stood for several minutes
watching the tumbling of the waters.
C. E. Courter was in Mt. Vernon on Wednesday on business.

NORMALS

At Two State Colleges in Ohio—Training Schools for Teachers—Akron Tax Rate.

Columbus, O., March 6.—The Senate has passed the bill to establish two State normal schools. The bill provides for a school at Miami University
at Oxford, Butler county, and at Ohio University, at Athens, and carries an appropriation of $57,000 for both. If they are found to be desirable a commission is authorized to recommend an appropriation for similar institutions at other State colleges.

Bills fixing the maximum tax levy for the city of Akron at 11 mills and authorizing Akron to issue $200,000
bonds to extinguish floating indebtedness were passed. This measure carried an appropriation of $7,500 to reimburse citizens for property losses sustained in the Akron riots last summer, but it was eliminated.

PIT

OPENING IS A MASS OF FIRE
AT CATTSBURG

MANY LIVES PROBABLY LOST IN EXPLOSION.

IT OCCURRED THURSDAY NOON.

Some Reports Say Ten are Dead, Others
Thirty—Two Burned Men Escaped.

Monongahela, Pa., March 6.—A serious explosion occurred this noon in the Cattsburg mine a mile above this place, and it is feared that a number of miners are entombed in the mine.
Two have escaped seriously burned,
but many others are in the mine. Different reports have reached here and some of them give the number as low as ten, while others have them up to thirty. The pit opening is a mass of flames.

London papers which recently announced the death of Admiral Montoro, Dewey's rival at Manila, mistook him for Vice Admiral Montoro.

To Be Courtmartialled.

Manilla, March 6.—Major Waler and Lieut. Day of the marine corps are to be courtmartialled March 17. They are charged with torturing Filipinos and executing others in the island of Samar without trial. Waler and his marines did some good work in Samar after the massacre of part of the men of the Ninth infantry.

One accusation against the officers
is that they tied a Filipino to a tree and shot him in the thigh. Next day the prisoner still remaining bound to the tree was shot in the arm. A bullet in the body was the punishment
the third day and on the fourth day it is said he was put to death. Friends of officers claim if the charges are true
the accused have been temporarily deranged by sufferings endured in Samar.

WARM SUN

Is Melting Away the Heavy Snow that Had Paralyzed Business in Altoona, Penn.

Altoona, Pa., March 6.—This section
is still in the grasp of the snow king.
Hundreds of men worked all night
opening the main line of the Pennsylvania railroad for traffic. A passenger train was stalled in the mammoth drift near Martinsburg last night and was buried for 12 hours. Passengers roped themselves together and waded in three feet of snow to town. All business is suspended in this city. Today a bright warm sun is melting the snow.

Crop Report.

Columbus, O., March 6.—The official crop report of the Ohio Department of Agriculture shows that the condition
of wheat compared with an average, is 62 per cent. The principal cause assigned is late seeding on account of the prolonged drought last fall. Many fields are reported bare of growth.

DEFENSE

IN PATRICK MURDER TRIAL
IS OUTLINED

THIRTY WITNESSES ARE TO BE EXAMINED

TO SHOW THAT MR. RICE DIED

From Natural Causes and That the Defendant Was the Millionaire's Friend, not His Murderer.

New York, March 6.—The testimony against the charge that Albert Patrick killed Millionaire William Rice was commenced when court opened today,
the prosecution having closed its case
yesterday.

An outline of what Lawyer Patrick's attorneys purpose doing follows, although it is not probable they have made public their intentions:

The number of witnesses they expect to call is about 30. Attorney House will first formally move that the indictment be dismissed. Should the motion be denied he will proceed with the formal opening address for the defense, declaring that Patrick was Rice's friend, not his murderer.
It is promised that several eminent doctors will testify that William M.
Rice died from natural causes; that he was dead before Jones put the chloroform-soaked sponge in a cone over his face. They will declare that if a fatal dose of chloroform produced the new congestion found in Rice's lungs, it would have caused equal congestion in the brain, liver and kidneys and throughout the venous system. In Rice's case the lungs alone were congested. They will declare that sudden inhalation of chloroform, such as Jones says he caused Rice to take,
must have awakened him, no matter
how soundly he slept.

The defense also promises to produce witnesses who heard Rice say that he was tired of Texas and Texas
people and wanted nothing more to do with them; that Houston officials were always raising his taxes; that the people of Texas would get very little from him for the W. M. Rice institute, and that he was going to make a new
will in accordance with this feeling.
The defense promises further that it will produce a witness who saw W. M.
Rice sign the Swenson and Fifth avenue Trust company checks and send them to Patrick.

Dr. Walker Curry, who attended
Rice, will swear that he died of natural causes, and several morgue attendants are to say that Drs. Donlin and Williams, who made the autopsy,
did not know that Rice had died of anything but old age.

Anxious About Etruria.

New York, March 6.—The Etruria
has not been heard from up to 10 o'clock this morning. Local officials of the line had expected the steamer would reach the Azores yesterday, but in this they were disappointed. The Cunard officials here however, are confident that the boat will then turn up soon, and are assuring inquiring friends of the passengers that the steamer is all right.

NO TRACE

Of the Men Who Robbed the Bank at Montgomery, Ind.—Police Have No Clue.

Washington, Ind., March 6.—The men who looted the First National bank at Montgomery yesterday as tel-graphed in these dispatches to the Advocate, carrying off $25,000 in cash and $2,500 worth of bonds, have disappeared from Southern Indiana as completely as if swallowed by the earth.
All trace of them was lost the moment
they abandoned the band car one mile west of Montgomery. The police of every town and city in this section of the state were notified within three hours after the safe was blown, but none of the robbers have been captured.

Quarter of a Million Lost.

Plainfield, N. J., March 6.—The Babcock block was destroyed by fire this morning together with the Sebring building. The loss amounts to about $250,000.

DEFAULTING CASHIER
BLOWS OUT BRAINS.

Springfield, Ill., March 6.—Frank W.
Cottle, cashier of the State bank at Elkhart, whose alleged shortage of $32,000 caused the closing of the bank,
blew out his brains at his residence
yesterday afternoon as he lay in bed.

Mr. Cottle had been suffering with an attack of pleurisy since last Saturday. While his son was gone from his room Mr. Cottle shot himself in the left temple with a 44-caliber revolver. The family rushed into the room and found him dead, blood and brains
being scattered over his pillow.

Mr. Cottle was 56 years old. He had been cashier of the bank for a number of years. His father was a Louisiana sugar planter who was very wealthy.

HANNA DENIES REPORT.

Washington, March 6.—There is absolutely no truth in it," was Senator Hanna's comment today upon the report that there is to be a consolidation of the two big street railroad companies in Cleveland.

MOB

SAID TO BE MARCHING ON AN ALABAMA JAIL

To Rescue Negro Who Hanged at Noon—Mob Didn't Appear—All Quiet at Marion.

Marion, Ala., March 6.—(Bulletin)
—The report that the negroes would attempt to liberate Luke Sanders who hangs at noon today did not materialize and things are calm and serene today. The city and jail are strongly protected. Further trouble is not anticipated.

Marion, Ala., March 6.—An organized mob of negroes is marching toward this town with the intention of taking the County Jail and releasing two negro murderers, one of whom is Luke Sanders, to hang today.

Citizen soldiery is being organized,
and last night 50 men were under arms ready to meet the marching negroes. Pickets have been thrown out on every road leading into the town,
and if the mob appears a serious conflict is feared. Leading citizens held a conference, and it was decided not to ask the Governor for aid, as they believed it to be the duty of the people to enforce law and order.

When the reports were first received little credence were placed in them.
Several hours later couriers reported that real danger existed, and the citizens' posse was immediately organized.

Luke E. Sanders and John Sanders, the prisoners, are charged with the murder of Road Overseer Mullen, committed several months ago. Luke Sanders was sentenced to hang and the Supreme court refused a new hearing, but recommended commutation of sentence by the Governor. The matter was referred to the State Par-dening Board and on their recommendation he refused to interfere with the lower Court's sentence. When news of this action reached Marion the negroes of Perry county were incensed and decided to organize and release
both men.

Perry county is one of the "black belt" counties and a large majority of the population is composed of negroes.

Cuban Sugar Fight.

Washington, March 6.—President Roosevelt will keep out of the Cuban sugar fight. He has declined to send a message to Congress unless the latter should fail to take any action on behalf of the island. As long as there is a chance that Congress will do something he will not interfere.

Armour Wedding.

New York, March 6.—All arrangements are completed for the marriage
at the Hotel Netherlands tonight of Mrs. May Lester Armour, widow of Philip Armour, Jr. to Patrick A.
Valentine. The few relatives and personal friends invited to attend the wedding who reside in Chicago have arrived in New York.

The bridal gown is of blue chiffon
over satin and is elaborately trimmed with lace. The bouquet will be of pink roses. A wedding dinner will follow the ceremony. Before sailing for Europe, the bridal couple will take a short trip south.

SINS

FOUND HIM OUT THOUGH HE HAD REFORMED

HAD BECOME A RESPECTED MAN AND GROWN RICH.

HE ESCAPED ELEVEN YEARS AGO

After Conviction for Counterfeiting
and When Arrested Was a Power Among Neighbors.

Little Rock, Ark., March 6.—A remarkable case of lost identity has just come to light at Casa, a thriving town 60 miles above Little Rock. In response to orders received from Paris,
Texas, Deputy United States Marshal
John McClure went to Casa yesterday and arrested a respected citizen and successful merchant known there as J. A. Alexander, on the charge of being a fugitive from justice in Texas, and brought him to Little Rock on the afternoon train.

Last night a Texas deputy left with his prisoner for Paris, where he will be called upon to answer a conviction of 11 years' standing. It appears that on May 14, 1890, this man, whose real name is James Huddleston, was convicted in a Federal court on one count for passing counterfeit money and sentenced to a term in the penitentiary.

The case was given to the jury at 6 o'clock in the evening and at 11 the jury returned a sealed verdict, which was not read in Court until the following morning. By some unknown means Huddleston learned the nature of the verdict and made good his escape, forfeiting a five thousand dollar bond.

From that time until last week no trace could be found of the missing man.

The Marshal of the Northern District of Texas learned that he was residing at Casa, Perry county, Arkansas, under an assumed name, and his arrest followed.

Since coming to Casa he had become one of the most highly respected and influential citizens of the community and had accumulated considerable wealth. He is on the bonds of Sheriff White and other county officials for large amounts. The people with whom he has lived so long would not believe that he was guilty and his arrest and subsequent avowal of his identity has caused a pronounced sensation.

TAXATION BILLS

Of Governor Nash Are Opposed by Senator Hanna—Causes Sensation in Politics.

Columbus, O., March 5.—A sensation was caused in legislative circles
yesterday by the announcement, by Representative Painter, that the bills introduced at the request of Governor Nash and intended to increase the taxes on corporations so that the regular State tax levy might be wholly abolished, were being fought by Senator M. A. Hanna. The measures are meeting with stiff opposition but it was not known until yesterday from what source it was coming.

Governor Nash and Senator Hanna
have been colleagues up to this time,
in all political and legislative matters,
and it is supposed that the senator felt the proposed measures pinching his toes.

Shipping Bill.

Washington, March 6.—It appears likely now that the senate will reach a vote on the pending shipping bill
one week from next Monday. When Mr. Frye, in charge of the measure, es-deavored to secure an agreement for the time of taking a vote that date was mentioned as being satisfactory to the minority members of the commerce committee.

The St. Louis Fair.

London, March 6.—George Parker,
English commissioner of the St. Louis Exposition, has procured the endorsement of the aeronautical society of Great Britain for an airship contest
at the exposition. The Aeronautical society meet Tuesday night to officially ratify the endorsement.

The Water Works Committee.

The committee appointed by the Council to prepare a statement to the voters of the city on the water works proposition met last evening and began the work before them. They have entered upon a task of no small dimensions, for it will take much time and labor to investigate all the legal and economic phases of the question and then prepare a statement of the facts and figures for the understanding of the voters of the city.

No better selection could have been made by the Council for this arduous duty, and what these gentlemen will say in their report will be accepted as thoroughly reliable by every good citizen of the city. The Advocate will speak of them and their work more at length tomorrow.

The cost of construction of our new navy is not measured by the expenditures necessary to put the ships into commission as armed and equipped vessels of war. The cost of repairs is immense. Since 1888, according to a naval report, $9,346,235 has been expended in repairs. The battleship Oregon cost the enormous sum of $6,575,032, but it appears to have neared perfect work, and has cost only $70,000 for repairs, but other vessels whose original cost was much less than that of the Oregon have had expended on them from $223,000 to over $500,000 for repairs. When a prominent senator was recently taken through the wonderful new library of Congress, he could hardly express his astonishment on learning that it had cost only the price of one battleship.

Discuss the Question Fairly on Its Own Merits.

It is a little singular if the American Tribune wants a fair discussion of the water works question, that it should resort to methods to frighten the people and thus prevent fair discussion. That paper's latest enterprise is the invention of a story about city sewers in its Tuesday issue it said:

"He (the city civil engineer) is reported to have said that Newark was greatly in need of large trunk sewers, to construct which would cost the city at least $150,000."

Then the A.T. came out again yesterday with a bragging editorial of how it had stirred the people up on this unfounded story.

Now, the fact is the city civil engineer never made any such statement. The story is a pure invention, as is shown by a card signed by the city engineer printed in another column.

If the American Tribune prefers a continuance of the city's present rental contract with the old water works company to that of the proposition submitted to the people for city ownership, it should say so squarely and discuss the question on its merits from a purely economic standpoint.

British consols show the effect of the Boer war. They are now selling very near the lowest price of 1901, which was 91 1/2 as against 110 in 1897, which was the highest price ever recorded.

In his Sunday sermon at Baltimore, Cardinal Gibbons had words of truth and soberness on the question of imperialism. He compared the gospel of Christ with the historical utterances of the great orators in history to show the permanence of the moral principle, the temporary character of the other. "Five and twenty years ago," said the cardinal, "if a public speaker were to extol the wisdom and statesmanship of our splendid island and our fleet."

Com from entangling alliances with foreign nations, and if he were to denounce imperialism he would be universally applauded. If he were to speak today along the same lines he would be regarded by many a verger toward political heresy."

Cost of Rental for Fire Plugs.

The Advocate has been frequently asked how much the city of Newark pays annually to the water works company as rental for fire plugs. The amount paid last year was $12,915.00—a sum more than sufficient to pay the interest on $300,000 of bonds. The number of fire plugs paid for is 274, while the city needs today, according to the plans and specifications recently furnished by the special engineer employed for that purpose is 415. The city, therefore, has not got adequate fire protection, though it pays this large annual rental.

Any citizen can see these figures by calling at the City Clerk's office. But all the facts and figures covering every phase of the water works question will be fully brought out by the detailed statement that is to be made by the non-partisan committee, appointed by the Council. The Advocate will abide by the statements in that report in every particular.

The diseases of fish are now being carefully and scientifically studied by a scientist under the direction of the Government Fish Commission. Already he has found cures for several fish epidemics which prevail in hatching stations.

THAT SEWER STORY

Of the American-Tribune Shown to be Pure Fiction—Card of the City Civil Engineer.

"Newark is a growing city and the demands upon the taxpayers to keep pace with its growth in the matter of public improvements will in the near future amount to hundreds of thousands of dollars. This is an absolute fact and a statement of the city civil engineer is to that effect. He is reported to have said that Newark was greatly in need of large trunk sewers, to construct which would cost the city at least $150,000."

The above paradoxical statement, from Tuesday's American-Tribune comes as somewhat of a surprise to the undersigned. The statement is untrue. I never made such a statement, and I would not, for the following reasons:

First. I am by education, as well as by practice, opposed to a system of large sewers, and as a civil engineer of experience, would not recommend them for the city of Newark. I need not enumerate my reasons here, but refer the American-Tribune to my report to the city, a full copy of which it may have at any time.

Second. That Newark is not today in need of a system of large trunk sewers, and what sewers the city does at present need, will not cost the sum named above, nor anything near it. The ownership of a system water works by the city does not carry with it the establishment of a system of large trunk sewers. Hence the question of sewers is a separate question, as I understand it, and is in no way connected with the water works question.

The fact is there is now, generally, too little water running through the large sewers of the city, instead of being overtaxed in their capacity. The addition of plenty of pure water is rather beneficial than otherwise to a sewer, especially to the large combined sewers.

The sewer inspectors of the city will gladly welcome the time when there is an abundance of fresh water for flushing purposes.

I state these facts for the purpose of disabusing the minds of the voters, that I made the statement reported by the American-Tribune, and to make it clear that this water works question is not connected with any sewer proposition, if carried, cause the city to at once go to the expense of building a system of large trunk sewers to take care of the surplus water of a city plant.

C. L. REAMER,
City Civil Engineer.

HEARD .. IN .. Washington

[Special Correspondence.]

WASHINGTON, March 3.—Washington's pre-eminence as the convention city, particularly the women's convention city, has again been demonstrated. During the last fortnight there have gathered here for their annual meetings the Women's Suffrage association, the Daughters of the American Revolution, the Mothers' Congress, the Children's Congress and the National Council of Women, which have brought to the capital hundreds of intelligent and attractive women from all parts of the country. While most of these organizations have a serious purpose and the delegates in the main are thoughtful women, these gatherings have their pleasant social side. Also there are displayed many smart and pretty gowns. The meeting of the Daughters of the American Revolution is socially the gayest of all these assemblies, as it is in some other respects the liveliest.

During the presence of the Daughters in the city a local shopkeeper caused this placard to be conspicuously displayed in his show window:

D. A. R. TERS
SHOULD WEAR OUR
G. A. R. TERS.

Representative Dalzell of Pennsylvania was discovered the other day pacing uneasily up and down the ways and means committee room.

"What's the matter?" asked Representative Dalzell.

McClellan of New York. "You seem to be nervous."

"I am nervous," replied Mr. Dalzell. "I'm going to speak in the house this afternoon. I always have stage fright for hours before making a speech."

"And that reminds me," he continued. "Years ago President McKinley and I were waiting at a hotel to be driven to a hall, where we were both announced to speak. Mr. McKinley sat calmly smoking his cigar, while I was pacing up and down just as I am now."

"Major," I said, "don't you ever get nervous before speaking? You are as cool as a cucumber, and I'm as nervous as the valetudinarian of a young ladies' seminary."

"My dear Dalzell," he replied, "the difference between us is this: You have got your speech in your head, and I've got mine in my pocket."

The laugh is on Representative Cooper of Texas, who is one of the Democrats on the ways and means committee of the house, and it all came about by reason of a hair cut.

On the day Representative Babcock of Wisconsin attempted to get his bill for putting iron and steel on the free list tacked to the war revenue reduction bill Mr. Cooper was in the barber shop getting his hair cut. If he had been at the meeting of the ways and means committee, his vote would have passed Mr. Babcock's motion, and the latter's rather sweeping proposition would have been made a rider on the revenue reduction bill and doubtless would have precipitated a great tariff fight in the house.

After the Babcock amendment had been rejected Mr. Cooper strolled jauntily into the committee room.

"Where've you been?" asked Mr. Babcock excitedly.

"Been getting my hair cut," Mr. Cooper answered.

"Great heavens," said Mr. Babcock, "you are always getting your hair cut."

Now every time there is a vote taken in the house and Mr. Cooper is present many members sing out, "Go and get your hair cut."

Speaking of embarrassments in making public addresses, the experience of Senator Wellington of Maryland the other day in the senate is in line. He was closing a very earnest address and had reached the climax of his effort.

"Mr. President," he said, his voice trembling with emotion, "as the poet has said in those glorious lines familiar to all of us—"

He reached down to his desk with his right hand and fumbled about. He stopped, looked down and then continued:

"In those glorious lines which we all know so well—"

Still the right hand tossed papers and books about on the desk. The Maryland senator hesitated—"which we all know so well—those lines—"

The hand grasped a bit of typewritten paper.

"All," said the senator, much relieved—"those lines"—and he held the paper up and read with great declamatory effect:

"When Freedom from her mountain height unfurled her standard to the air, She tore the azure robe of night And set the stars in glory there."

Washington has many strange visitors, and sometimes they come on most peculiar missions. The official in charge of the Washington monument tells of a man who came all the way from New Orleans to scatter his wife's ashes from the top of the tall shaft.

"The man explained," said the official, "that before his wife died she made him promise that after her death he would have her remains cremated."

HE HAD HIS WIFE'S ASHES.

bring the ashes to Washington and scatter the dust to the four winds of heaven from the top of the monument.

"We told him we could not consent to let him go where he wanted for any such purpose. We showed him that if by any chance the ashes stuck in a lump they would weigh a ton for destructive purposes by the time they reached the ground, and as people were all the time walking about the base of the monument some one, it was almost certain, would be killed."

"The man left, carrying the ashes with him, after saying that he guessed if he threw them into the river the same purpose would be answered."

Senator Elkins of West Virginia has a friend out in New Mexico who wanted an office some time ago and got it. For months the aspirant worked like a beaver, securing endorsements from about everybody who could write until he had enough to fill a wheelbarrow. These he had bound into a large volume with covers of solid silver and with the corners of the book and the edges of the leaves adorned with gold leaf. The pages of the book were filled with autographs collected with great trouble and expense, each name certifying to the high character of the applicant.

Loaded down with this, he came to Washington and deposited his burden at Senator Elkins' door. The senator smiled when he saw it.

"My dear fellow," he said, "you don't need all that truck. You were going to be appointed anyway."

Instead of being overjoyed the applicant heaved a sigh. "Can't I file my endorsements?" he asked.

"Oh, yes, if you want to," replied the senator.

"And can't I present this beautiful gold and silver book to the president?" continued the New Mexican.

"It isn't at all necessary," said Mr. Elkins.

"Senator," remarked the applicant, "if I don't do something I cannot go back home. Every man who signed my papers has been told that his name was to be brought to the personal attention of the president, and every man will be sure to ask me what the president said."

All the papers, including the gold and silver book, were sent to the treasury department building and dumped in the cellar. The president of course never saw them, but out in New Mexico the fiction of his personal examination of all the certificates of good character is no doubt a cherished belief.

When the oleomargarine bill was up in the house the other day, Representative Clayton of Alabama offered an amendment providing for pure candy.

The Alabamian has a sweet tooth and is fond of confectionery of all kinds, but is especially partial to chocolate caramels. This may explain his reason for offering the amendment.

"You millionaires," said Mr. Clayton, "who can buy the finest kinds of candies do not need any protection against adulteration, but we poor fellows want some legislation to save us from glucose and white clay when we buy common candy for the children."

"And for our sweethearts," interrupted a member.

"Yes," assented Mr. Clayton, "and for our sweethearts."

And then Mr. Clayton blushed rosy red, for he is a widower and extremely popular with the ladies.

Troubles that Lead to Insanity and Suicide Result from a Diseased and Disorganized Nervous System.

Paine's Celery Compound

The Great Banisher of Nervousness in all its Forms.

Are you a victim of melancholia, and do you brood from day to day? Does the shrill of the steam whistle, the rattle of wheels, or the clangor of bells cause you to start and shiver? If this is your condition, be assured your case is extremely critical.

It is fitting that you should investigate your condition at once. If you are sleepless, depressed in spirits, if your mental movements are slow, if you are subject to terrifying hallucinations and an aversion to food, we say with all earnestness, beware of insanity and suicide.

The science of medicine has, thank Heaven, furnished a means for the banishment of all the troubles referred to. Paine's Celery Compound is the great restorer and builder of the weakened and shattered nervous system. This marvelous prescription of Professor Edward E. Phelps, M. D., LL. D., begins its work directly on the nerves by bracing them up; it strengthens tissues and muscles; it causes pure life giving blood to flow freely to every part of the body, carrying health, vigor, joy, happiness into each hour of life. Beware of remedies that have no merit or reputation to commend them, they simply aggravate existing troubles. Ask your druggist for Paine's Celery Compound, the medicine that never disappoints.

PIPE ORGANS.

SOMETHING ABOUT THESE KIND OF INSTRUMENTS

In General and the One Just Installed at the First Methodist Church in Particular.

The musical capabilities of the modern pipe organ are by far greater than those of any other instrument of music. This large range of effectiveness is due to three principal properties. The first of these is the large number of pipes each of which is, in a sense, an independent instrument. The second is the fact that it contains arrangements (key-board and couplers) by which numbers of these pipes can be operated at the same time. Third, it substitutes for the human lungs a bellows which vastly increases the power of the instrument.

In the modern bellows there are two divisions, a feeder and an air chest. The sounding-board separates the air-chest from the organ-pipes which are arranged above it. The drawing out of a slide, called a "stop" partly opens up to the air a whole set of pipes of one peculiar quality or tone, so that when any key is pressed down, the air finds its way to the appropriate pipe of that "stop" or series. When more than one "stop" is drawn out the air is admitted at the same time into several distinct groups of pipes.

The larger organs, such as the one now being placed in the First M. E. church of this city, consist of two or more distinct partial organs, each of which has its peculiar key-board and a separate air-chest and sounding-board for its pipes.

The names of the several organs, to quote from Dudley Buck, point partly to the quality of the sound produced, partly to the range or compass of the pipes belonging to it, and to other circumstances. Thus the trumpet and the oboe, which are both reed stops, are so named from the resemblance of their tones to those of these instruments. The diapason stops are so called because their pipes extend through the whole compass of the organ. The stop "principal" is so named from the fact that it is the first stop tuned, and the standard, therefore, for the pitch of the remaining stops. Many modern improvements are now used in the best organs to increase the scope and lessen the labor of the organist. The tubular Pneumatic action has largely taken the place of the old "Tracker" action. The new organ of the First church is equipped with all these devices, making its touch lighter than that of the piano.

It was very dark and he could not see very well, and in this way he stumbled over a centur stake and injured his arm. He walked for a mile before he knew his arm was hurt and the way he found out was when he attempted to climb a fence and his fingers failed to clutch the rail. On arriving at home Dr. G. N. RAILROAD NEWS

Mr. Smith's Birthday.

Mr. S. R. Smith, a well known B. & O. railroad man employed in the round house, had probably forgotten that Wednesday was the anniversary of his birth, but his good wife had not forgotten that important fact. She planned a joyful surprise upon him at their hospitable home, 299 Summer street, which proved to be a complete success. The extreme inclemency of the weather prevented a number from the country, who were expected, from attending. The guests present were Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Kummer, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Jackson and daughter, Ethel, Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Wilson and sons Charles and Arthur, and several others. The evening was delightfully spent in music, games and social chat, and an elegant supper was served in Mrs. Smith's best style. Mr. Smith was the recipient of many useful and beautiful presents, in addition to the complete surprise. It was at a late hour when the merry party separated, all wishing Mr. and Mrs. Smith many more such happy returns.

Concerning Mr. Murray.

Despite the fact that the newspapers have repeatedly and persistently removed Oscar Murray from his position with the B. & O. and his denials have been as reported, the rumor was again sprung yesterday and the Cincinnati Enquirer settles it again in this:

"Oscar G. Murray, first vice president of the B. & O. who has been at Hot Springs, Ark., for several weeks, on a vacation, has returned to his headquarters at Baltimore and resumed the duties of his position.

It has been rumored on several occasions of late that Mr. Murray would sever his connection with the B. & O. to take service elsewhere.

"Mr. Murray says that he has no intention of leaving the B. & O.; that he is well satisfied where he is, and that the relations existing between the officials of this company are pleasant, reports to the contrary being unfounded. "Regarding changes to be made in the traffic department, of which he is the head, he says they are for the purpose of concentration and economy in that department.

"The newly acquired lines are to be brought into the B. & O. organization and the management placed on a compact basis."

Hocking Valley Depot Destroyed.

Owens Station, on the northern division of the Hocking Valley road, was totally destroyed by fire Wednesday, the blaze being caused by a defective flue. The total loss will not exceed $1000. The grain elevator of John Owens, just across the track from the depot, also caught fire and was destroyed. His loss will be considerable. This is the second station building destroyed by the flames in less than two weeks. Both fires were accidental.

Important B. & O. Order.

The B. & O. officials have issued an order which is of vast importance to the traveling public. For several weeks the trains from Pittsburg have been late in arriving at Newark, thus causing passengers to miss connections. The recent order is to the effect that hereafter when the Pittsburg connections are as much as an hour late a special train shall be made up at Newark and the passengers carried straight through. This order will be appreciated by the traveling public.

The above order refers to train 103 leaving Newark at 1:45 p. m., and assures the people of Newark first-class service to Columbus and Cincinnati, as this train will practically leave on time every day.

Engineer's Death.

Corry, Pa., March 5.—Engineer Wm. Potter of the Erie railroad, met death at Columbus, Pa., in a strange manner last evening. While looking from the cab window for signals he was struck on the head by a giant mail crane. His skull was fractured. The train, a New York express, ran some distance before the fireman stopped it. Potter was brought here to the hospital and died early this morning. He resided in Meadville and leaves a wife and child.

Railroad News Briefs.

G. L. Peck, general manager, has issued a circular of an amendment adopted to the rules of the relief department which allows a member of the relief to be transferred from the Pennsylvania lines west of Pittsburg to the Pennsylvania lines east of Pittsburg, or vice versa, without regard to age or physical condition.

W. E. Gearhart formerly in the employ of C. D. Cotter, went to Chicago Junction this morning where he will do some carpenter work for the B. & O. railroad company. Mr. Gorhart has been employed by the company as a bridge carpenter and will work on this division between Chicago Junction and Newark.—Mansfield News.

B. & O. train No. 7 which passed through Newark on Wednesday, presented a most fright appearance. The whole train was covered with snow and long icicles were hanging in abundance along the sides of the coaches and edges of the platform. The trainmen stated that the snow and ice was encountered at Wheeling and that a foot of snow now covers the ground in that vicinity.

Artistic Decoration.

One of the finest as well as the most artistically decorated churches in the city, is the St. Paul's Lutheran, on First street. Mr. N. Pfandler, Newark's popular fresco artist, who has resided here for the past twenty-five years, has been engaged for the past six weeks in transforming the auditorium of the church into the most beautiful religious assembly room in the city. The color scheme is tasty, harmonious and up-to-date. The style of decoration is pure Gothic, and too great credit cannot be bestowed upon the artist, Mr. Pfandler. It is suggested that it is not necessary when our citizens are in need of artistic jobs of decorating, to seek the aid of outside or foreign contractors, when such finished mechanics are among our own citizens. It is expected that the dedication services of this handsome church will be held at Easter time.

"ALL WORKED OUT."

An Instructive Lesson in the Death Roll of Our Great Men.

Dr. Greene's Nervura a Protection Against Premature Death. Value of Vigorous Nerves and Pure Blood.

In the death of great and gifted men and women, who have filled the public mind and who are held in tender and tearful remembrance, how many have gone because they were "worked out?"

It is a lengthy and a sad list. We can easily recall many whom we have personally known, who have seemed to wear their precious lives out all too soon because their deaths were premature. The world feels their loss keenly for its sudden ending.

They were not worked out; they were tired out, exhausted. They stopped because they could go no greater physical lengths. Why? Their vitality was vitiated and lost. Long years ago, Dr. Greene, studying this deep problem, discovered its prime cause and at once set the nerves and purify and enrich the blood when both become weakened, and to prevent, if taken in time, such relapse of physical force. He succeeded to such an extent that Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy has gained a world-wide reputation through its wonderful cures and the benefits it has conferred on the thousands who have used it. In his study of this subject he has also become the leading authority on blood and nervous ailments, and so is sought as physician by people everywhere. He charges no fee for his advice, and can consequently be consulted, free of charge, by letter or in person.

If you are "worked out," if weak, nervous, run down, or you feel "out of sorts," or if you want to avoid the ills, weakness, and exhaustion, so sure to come, don't delay. Get this grand restorer of health and strength, Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, at once, and it will make you well. Dr. Greene's Laxura Pills act in perfect harmony with the Nervura, producing regular, natural, and healthy action of the liver and bowels. Dr. Greene, of 101 Fifth Avenue, New York City, who is our most successful specialist in curing all forms of nervous and chronic diseases, can be consulted without charge in regard to any case, personally or by letter.

about its correction. He found the seat of health to be strength and vigor of nerve and pure blood, and determined to discover a remedy that would re-energize

RURAL ROUTES

INSPECTOR HAS BEEN DELAYED IN HIS WORK

But is Still in This District—Salaries Paid to Rural Mail Carriers is Increased.

Postmaster J. M. Ickes has received the following letter from J. W. Cassingham, Congressman from this district, relative to the inspection of the rural free delivery routes in Licking county:

Dear Sir:—Mr. Kepler, the Inspector for our district, has been delayed somewhat in his work, but is still in our district. The last reports from him were that he was in Wayne county and as soon as he is through there he will go to Licking. He began his work at Coshocton, and after completing the work there he was called to Washington on matters incident to the placing of carriers under civil service regulations, and then before he returned to our district he was called away on matters connected with routes already established. I have assurance from the department that he will remain in our vicinity for some time yet, and I hope he will get to your county in time allotted to our district. Thanking you for calling my attention to this matter, and hoping that our district will get its just quota of routes, I am

Very truly yours,

J. W. CASSINGHAM.

Mr. Ickes has received the following letter from Hon. A. W. Machen, General Superintendent Free Delivery, Washington:

"The Postmaster-General has this day ordered that on and after March 1, 1902, the letter carriers of the rural free delivery service heretofore appointed, and whose names appear on the roll of the department at the close of business February 28, 1902, receiving salaries at the rate of $500 per annum, and those who may be appointed after that date, shall be paid at the rate of $600 per annum until otherwise ordered, and that the salaries of carriers now receiving less than $500 per annum shall be increased 20 per cent.

This order does not apply to carriers or clerks in charge of rural postal stations.

KODAK

In the Money Drawer Took a Picture of the Thief When He Opened It.

Brazil, Ind., March 6.—Yesterday afternoon Alfred Decker of the firm of Decker & Son, furniture dealers, successfully photographed Harry Sayer, a trusted employee, while he was stealing money from the drawer.

The firm had been missing money for several weeks, and finally Mr. Decker decided to trap the thief. Consequently he arranged a kodak on the money drawer and attached a string to the slide which was passed into the cellar. A hole was then bored through the floor to allow Decker a full view of the safe, and when Sayer was taking the coins from the drawer Decker pulled the string, securing an excellent photograph of the thief with his hands full of coins. He was immediately arrested and confined.

Engaged Girls Barred.

(London Telegraph.)

"No engaged girls need apply," is the latest phase of the nursing profession. Doctors and matrons have, it appears, been discussing the subject, and have come to the conclusion that damsels who are engaged to be married should not be admitted as probationers to training schools because, in the opinion of these staid, matter-of-fact persons, they only dally with nursing until the time comes to trip lightly into marriage, and thus stand in the way of those who intend to devote themselves wholeheartedly to their profession.

Moreover, doctors and matrons entertain a strong suspicion that not a few of these giddy candidates seek the privilege of wearing a nurse's uniform, with all the attractions it possesses, for the purpose primarily of working havoc among the hearts of medical students and others with a view of speedy marriage. An argument used on the other side is that even young women who are engaged to be married would derive inestimable advantage from passing a year or two among nurses and learning something about how to treat simple maladies such as occur frequently in households. That may be so, but nursing is now a recognized profession, and those engaged in it do not look favorably on those whom they regard as matrimonial interlopers. So the engaged girl probationer is to be shelved.

READY-TO-SERVE FOODS.

An Innovation for the Housewife and Family.

The introduction of ready-to-serve foods means much to the housewife as well as the balance of the family.

It obviates much of the drudgery in the kitchen and if properly prepared insures to the family a food that is digestible.

If "properly prepared," "there's the rub."

The market has been flooded with so called "predigested foodstuffs" or so called "pre-digested" and "ready-to-serve foods," the makers of which had not the least idea of food science and what constituted ready-to-serve food.

The originator of Malt-Nut, the famous malted, twice-cooked, ready-to-serve food, spent much time in experimenting on the proper preparation of the grains before the product was offered to the public.

By a new process the wheat in Malt-Nut is exposed to intense heat for several hours, which takes it through the first and hardest stages of digestion, after it undergoes this process the malted grain is treated to "nut oils" in an emulsified, or pre-digested form, this makes the food easily assimilated by the weakest stomach and insures to the purchaser that the product is exactly as is claimed for it, ready-to-serve.

The housewife, who has failed to give the family this dainty has deprived it of one of the luxuries. Malt-Nut can also be served into many delicious dishes. Recipes on the top of the package.

All progressive grocers sell Malt-Nut. Made by the American Pure Food Co. Ltd. Battle Creek, Mich.

REV. L. S. BOYCE.

Dear Sir:

We presume that like most members of your learned profession, the duties of which demand a more or less sedentary life, you know what it is to suffer from an inactive or torpid liver with the kidney disturbances which accompany that condition. This being so, are you aware that many clergymen have found that the only prompt safe and sure cure for these troubles is Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy?—that it has stood the test for thirty-five years of constant use with a record of cures innumerable?—that its efficiency has never been approached by any other medicine in existence—and that no physician on earth can prescribe any medicine or combination of drugs, half as efficacious, absolutely safe and prompt in its action as Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy?

In a letter recently received from the Rev. Aaron Coons, D. D., pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church, Rhinecliff, N. Y., he says:

"I most sincerely believe that Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy is the best Kidney, Liver and Blood medicine made, and urgently recommend it, for I know by experience it will do all that is claimed for it."

Now, if you or any of your friends need such a medicine, you can find it on sale at any reliable drug store at one dollar for a large size bottle, or we will be pleased to send you by mail absolutely free enough for trial.

Yours truly,

DR. DAVID KENNEDY Corporation, Rondout, N. Y.

PURITY.

The wind storm that swept through here last Friday night did considerable damage. Part of the roof was blown off of Mrs. Belle Householder's house, and Major Eli Wilkins' wind-pump was blown over. Several hay stacks were blown down and hardly an old fashioned "worm fence" was left standing in the track of the storm.

Willis Jones' house burned to the ground last Thursday. The family was at dinner when the fire was discovered and it had gained such headway that only a few articles were saved. There was no insurance.

Earl Turner, who has been employed in Moser & Wehrle's foundry, Newark, is home with a catarrh on his hand.

Miss Florence Roe and Mr. Elmer Goodin spent Sunday with Jesse Oldaker and sister, Miss Gladys.

A. A. Turner has pneumonia. Some long needed repairs were made at Concord school house last Saturday when some of the patrons of the district met there and turned the seats and made other necessary repairs. These repairs have not been completed but will be in the near future. When this is done the school house will be fitted inside as was planned at first, but which, owing to some blunder at the time of its construction, was not done.

Mrs. G. W. Marriott returned home last Thursday from nursing her sister, Mrs. Dave Beit. She was accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. Pearl Dush, who remained until the next day. Mrs. Marriott returned to her sister's Sunday.

Word was received here last week of the death of Mr. John Lyons of Adrian, Mich. He was an uncle of Mrs. G. W. Marriott and was well and favorably known in this section, having taught school at Concord and neighboring schools, for years, prior to his removal to Michigan.

Little Miss Indus Dush of St. Louisville is visiting her grandfather, G. W. Marriott.

Next Thursday night will see the close of the Concord literary for this season. These literaries have been a source of enjoyment all winter and have been well attended, but it is thought best to close them now in order to prepare for an entertainment to be given by this society in the near future. The date will be given later. Look out for a good program.

They can rub Omega Oil on the feet each night for a week or so, and then they won't suffer any more. Omega Oil is now used by the very best foot doctors in New York, and they say it is just wonderful how the Oil takes the pain out of the feet. Bathe the feet in warm water, wipe dry, and then rub on the Oil. This treatment is particularly recommended to men and women who have to stand up or walk a good deal. Farmers, clerks, mechanics or women who do housework will find Omega Oil the best foot cure they ever tried.

Omega Oil is good for everything a human ought to be good for.

Buckeye Lake Road.

TOLD IN NEWARK

The work of ballasting the Franklin county end of the Columbus Buckeye Lake and Newark Traction road is being pushed rapidly in order to establish regular service on the line from Columbus to the Franklin county line by March 15. The company is compelled to have the line in operation in this county by that date in order to save its franchise rights, which expire then.

Lee Fisher, the engineer in charge of the work, said Wednesday the road would be ready by that time and a regular schedule would then be established out as far as Reynoldsburg, and running around the loop on the Columbus end.—Columbus Press.

MR. STARKEY

WAS SEEN IN NEWARK EARLY TUESDAY EVENING.

But Where He is Now is Unknown

Public Approves the Jury's Verdict in Roberts Case.

As exclusively stated in the Advocate through a special telegram from Zanesville, the jury in the Starkey-Roberts breach of marriage case brought in a verdict in favor of Miss Roberts in the sum of $13,250. The public is said to approve of the verdict.

Starkey left town Tuesday evening on No. 47 B. & O. train for the west. He was seen Tuesday night at the depot at Newark by ex-Senator William E. Miller. He stated to Mr. Miller that he was going to Columbus. However, there is some ground for the belief that he boarded the Pan Handle at Newark and changed his course to the eastward, says this morning's Zanesville Times Recorder.

It may be that Mr. Starkey has gone away just for a few days in order to obtain rest and recreation after the long and tiring ordeal that he has passed through. On the other hand, it may be that he has given old Zanesville the go by for good. Nobody seems to know.

Employees in Mr. Starkey's office were approached on the matter Wednesday afternoon and while all seemed to know that he had left the city they were unable to state where he went or how long he was going to be gone.

After re-assembling at 8 o'clock on Wednesday morning the jury took up the case where they had left off Tuesday night and went over the evidence and arrived at a verdict.

The case has been a celebrated one in more ways than one. In point of attendance and interest manifested it leads all civil actions ever before tried in Muskingum county. The fact that so many women were with Miss Roberts is a remarkable feature in the case, and the confidence reposed in her by the citizens of Zanesville and Muskingum county after the making public of such testimony as Starkey unfolded on the stand is another remarkable feature.

The Verdict was awaited with an interest that heretofore has been unheard of.

Mr. Winn counsel for Miss Roberts, was congratulated not only by members of the jury but by many in the audience who returned to await the verdict of the jury. Several of the jurors expressed a desire to clasp the hand of Miss Roberts and to congratulate her, but they were denied this privilege owing to her absence.

Mad Dog.

Wednesday morning at the residence of James Rogers, eight miles southeast of the city, there was quite an exciting time. William Rogers was aroused from his slumbers before daybreak by short yelps from a dog inside of the yard. Later he got up and looked out of the window and discovered a short heavy built shepherd dog acting very strangely. The rest of the family were aroused, got up, went to the window and watched the dog's movements. He staggered along in the snow, with his mouth open, frothing at the same time. The dog had hydrophobia. Edgar Price secured a shot gun and shot the brute five times before killing it. Every farmer should be on the lookout.

Mrs. Stimson Improving.

Upon receipt of a copy of the Detroit Free Press announcing the serious illness of Mrs. C. H. Stimson, the Advocate wrote Dr. H. Stimson, and the following answer came from Detroit:

"I have your kind letter of March 3rd, and the interest you have taken is most gratefully appreciated. There was an error made by the Free Press as to Mrs. Stimson's sickness having been pneumonia. She has been quite ill, however, and we have entertained some fear of a lung complication, but her condition is decidedly better and as soon as she is able to travel I shall send her south where she may avoid the March weather, which is usually very severe at Detroit. Her mother, Mrs. Burber, will accompany her."

BRIDAL GOWNS.

They Are Trained Much More Fully Than Formerly.

The accepted material for a wedding gown has long been plain white satin or peau de soie. It has been the custom also to make the gown in a rather severe and splendid style. As a result of this many women have looked their worst in their wedding dress. The latest gowns of this description, however, show that this mode is changing and that all the frivolities of fashion are being called into requisition. The waists are laid in blue tucks and the skirts covered with beautiful feathery ruffles and embroideries. At one of the most fashionable weddings recently the bride wore a gown of white chiffon embroidered in satin true lovers' knots, and the waist and train were masses of lace.

The materials have grown sheerer and comprise chiffon, lace, point d'esprit, crepe de chine and even soft china silk. When satin is used, it is of the softer and more pliable varieties.

The cut shows one of the latest designs in bridal gowns. The dress is made of white chiffon and cream lace over white satin. The waist has a tucked yoke, with a full front and a short bolero of the lace. The sleeves, which are also of the lace, only reach to the elbow, where they are finished off with triple ruffles. The skirt has a front panel of the lace, and the full overskirt of chiffon is decorated with soft puffings around the bottom. The train, which is of lace and satin, starts from between the shoulders.

FASHIONS OF THE MOMENT

The Tricorne Hat—The Latest in Tailor Made Skirts.

At the present moment cloth frieze and zibeline gowns are chiefly worn, and these are most attractive when corded and strapped, the bodice being decorated with fancy panno. The Russian blouse and the Eton jacket are still popular, but little additions in the way of coat-tails are beginning to appear on the latter. In general the indications are coats are to be longer. Revers of lace and panno are popular on smooth cloths, and strappings of black moire are the latest thing.

The tricorne hat is extremely fashionable and is to be worn extensively this summer. The flat toque with lusters of felt or cloth forming the crown is still a favorite, and very bright colorings are affected.

A great deal of lace is being used on everything, including hats and coats.

SATIN WAIST.

The smartest lace is colored coffee brown and is of the heavy Irish or Arabian weave.

Many of the newest skirts have separate flounces of the good order, but so arranged that the separate flounce is not detected.

The skirt whose waist in the illustration is made of satin marvellous, it has a full, tucked front, and the plain sleeves are tucked into pretty cuffs of embroidery. The waist factors in front with the fancy waists. The chemise is also of the tucked satin trimmed with a pointed collar of Persian embroidery and two bands of the same. JUDIC CHOLLET.

SHANK'S ENGINE

BLEW UP BUT NOBODY WAS INJURED.

A Young Inventor in Northern Port of the County Displays Considerable Genius.

On March 6.—Youthful genius in the vicinity of Homer a few days ago received a "blow" which while severe enough to convey one of the participants a distance reputed to have been fifty feet, yet is thought not to have been severe enough to totally extinguish the divine spark as existing in the mentality of the particular young American who originated the trouble.

In that particular township of "Old Licking" possessing a village of classic name resides a lad called by his friends "Shank," in addition to this modification he inherited from his father a sur-name at one time worn by a President of the United States. Shank possessed a love and (to give him credit) an aptitude for mechanics which sometime since resulted in the production of an amateur traction engine which when it took the road would have made the efforts of Newark's noted citizens. Messrs. Scheidler or McNamar look like an imitation diamond with the paste scraped off. The cylinder of an old fan mill supplied the boiler, an old mower yielded its pedal revolvers to supply the cog wheels, a flat chain sufficed to turn the same, while smoke stacks, front trucks and other expedient data were supplied by equally strenuous methods.

Upon its first sally abroad, the graceful appearance and noiseless character of this machine caused it to resemble a sort of devil sprayed up from somewhere below the gas belt. Its behavior, however, seemed good, and its energy was harnessed largely to wood sawing. On the evening of the 3d of March, its young owner realized that during the day his path had crossed one of the proverbial rough places which must invariably beset every man of individuality enough for original action. It is rumored that upon first procuring the boiler of his pet, advice had been handed out to the effect of not giving her more than 40 pounds pressure. Later on it is also rumored (in fact most of the remainder of the tale is rumor) that the safety pop was screwed down to 60 pounds and fired up, while results were awaited from behind trees. This test had proven satisfactory. Thus on the 3d the 40 pound limit was presumably a thing of the past. A journey across country was inaugurated for woodsawing purpose. A gate was approached, "Shank" flagged ahead to open it. A youngster assisted bringing up the engine. He may have fired too violently. Water may have frozen in the boiler during the recent cold spell and cracking it. Maybe an evil genius pervaded the crisp atmosphere. Anyway just as she approached the gate, she let go. What kind of iron bound gymnast this fair sized metal contortionist indulged in, the Advocate does not know. It is sufficient to say that all ended happily, the machine was true to her doting young maker and injured neither himself nor his helper. Upon waking up, Shank several times mentioned to the surrounding ether the name of his partner, which was finally answered O. K. Shank is to be praised for the skill exhibited in putting the machine together in the first place. He may yet achieve publicity of a more profitable nature.

GROWS

WORSE INSTEAD OF BETTER DOES SITUATION

AT NORFOLK WHERE HALF OF THE STATE'S MILITIA IS ON DUTY OWING TO STRIKE.

Women Arrested and Jailed For Placing Rocks on Tracks—Few Cars Well Guarded.

Norfolk, Va., March 6.—The strike among the street car men and other employees of the Norfolk railway, and Light company is today as far from settlement as it ever has been in any period of its existence. The street car company sticks to its old proposition of only taking back such employees as it considers have been honest in the past, these to be placed under bond for their future honesty.

The car men say that all old men must be taken back with clean past records and they will then agree to be bonded for their future honesty. The railway company's ultimatum is that the old men must return within 24 hours or new men, now being imported, will be given their places permanently.

The situation, instead of improving is growing more serious all the while. The military now here which is more than half of the entire militia of the state of Virginia, patrol the streets, and not since the civil war have such scenes as are now being enacted been witnessed in Norfolk.

New men coming to take the strikers' places are met by heavy militia detachments and escorted to the cars, where they are placed on cars, a few of which are now being run with the usual heavy military guard. Great excitement today prevails and women have been arrested and jailed for placing rocks under cars in an effort to derail them. A drop in Seaboard Airline railway securities is said to have frightened the Seaboard people, who practically control the situation here.

THEORY

OF AMATEUR DETECTIVE RUDELY SHAKEN

By a Man Declared Dead and Woman He Has Prematurely Widowed. A Student's Experience.

New York, March 6.—As a student attending the College of Physicians and Surgeons, whose name is said to be Cohn, was passing through Rivington street, a woman shouted:

"There he is; there's the man who says you're dead."

As Cohn turned to look at the shouting woman he was seized by a powerful man who began to thrash him unmercifully. The woman also took a hand. At every opportunity she pulled hair out of Cohn's head or scratched his face.

In the college last evening Cohn told his experience to his friends. His body was bruised, and his head was bandaged. He made a vow to give up amateur detective work.

Mr. Cohn had theories about detecting work, and wished to prove he had the material in him out of which Hawksbaws were made.

Among a list of bodies taken into the dissecting room of the college a month ago there was one of a man of big frame, who had tattooed upon his right arm an elaborate nautical emblem. There was some discussion as to the possibility of tracing the dead to the possibility of tracing a dead man by such a mark. Cohn say at once that the subject offered a magnificent opportunity for his genius in the detective field. He had the skin-bearing the tattoo removed and took it to various tattooing establishments. They said it was "beautiful work," but they couldn't give any information to him as to who bore such a mark. At last he found a "professor" who recognized the design at once.

"I did that work for Michael Glenah," said the professor.

Cohn, after a long search, discovered Mrs. Glenahan in Jersey City, whose husband, a sailor, had been missing two months. Delighted with the success of his detective work, but putting on a look of solemnity, he went to Mrs. Glenahan and without a word warning announced that her husband was dead. He showed the piece of preserved skin, and said her husband had been dissected.

She shrieked and then fainted. The neighbors rushed in, saw her unconscious and not knowing anything of the facts, but thinking he had attacked a defenceless woman, they would have lynched him had he not fled for his life.

Cohn plumed himself upon his skill in the Glenahan investigation, and had no reason to have his confidence shaken until he was attacked on Rivington street.

He recognized the shrieking woman as Mrs. Glenahan. The man with his was the "dead" Mr. Glenahan.

FLAGGED PRINCE'S TRAIN.
South Bend, Ind., March 6.—Considerable excitement was caused aboard Prince Henry's special when it passed through this city by the emergency brakes being quickly applied in response to a lantern waved on the track ahead. Just as the train was coming to a standstill the waver of the lantern disappeared. It was afterwards learned that an old German had written a letter to the Prince which he wished to deliver in person and for that purpose flagged the train. When the train stopped friends had taken the old fellow away.

J. O. ECLEBERY

WRITES TWO INTERESTING LETTERS FROM CUBAN PORTS

Where He is Now Serving on Board the United States Battleship Kearsarge.

The following letters were written by J. O. Eclebery, a former machinist apprentice at the B. & O. shops at Newark, who resigned his position and joined the United States navy June 18, 1901, as a machinist:

Guantanamo, Cuba, Feb. 10, 1902.

Dear Mother—As I haven't received any mail since we got to this port I thought I would write another letter to you. We left Culebra last week on Sunday and arrived here on Tuesday night about 10 o'clock. It was about 150 miles run, but we were running slow. We are now anchored in Guantanamo bay. We met the tug boat Poconac here. It belongs to the fleet, and the Indiana arrived day before yesterday and is now one of the fleet. She looked very fine coming in, firing a salute to the Admiral. She is now quarantined, so I won't get to see my old friends for awhile. They have a case of yellow fever on board.

This port is where they did considerable fighting. We have men on our hip (Kearsarge) that were in the battle at this place. I was on the Albatross yesterday and saw some of my friends. One of our five inch guns exploded while firing at a target. One piece penetrated the Admiral's life boat, damaging it considerably. The boat cost $6000. It was made of magnifying wood. Fortunately no one was hurt. The Marietta has gone to Venezuela. There are six boats in the fleet now, and more to join. It will soon be the strongest fleet in the world. We are to leave here the 14th, but I must stay where we go, but I think I will be Cienfuegos, Cuba. As regards my present. I can call it my 15th and birthday present too. Ha! a! So much the better. So this is all. I close.

Yours truly,
J. O. ECLEBERY.

Cienfuegos, Cuba, Feb. 22, 1902.

Dear Mother—I secured your last letter a few days ago, and was very glad to hear from you, but as I had already written all I could a few days before, I failed to answer until now. We left Guantanamo about a week ago and stopped at Santiago one day. I saw all the Spanish ships that were destroyed there except one or two torpedo boats which went down in deep water. Among the battle ships were the Viscaya, which was at New York just before the Maine was blown up. So the Colon and the Oquenda are both there partly under water. The battle was fought on very deep water, so the ships were driven to shore before they sank. There are several men on this ship who were in the battle. The Indiana was hit once with a 16 inch shell. I was telling you about her joining this fleet. The Buffalo arrived here yesterday, and two gunboats, the Eagle and the Yankton were here when we came. While entering the harbor the Massachusetts went aground, and it took about all day to get her lightened enough to pull her out of deep water. I went ashore yesterday on liberty, the first time for two months. I certainly had a fine time. I hired a wheel and a friend of mine did the same, and we went all over the city, and then we took a fine rig and took life as easy as possible for a day. I am getting so that I can understand the Spanish language pretty well, but it is very hard to speak. One of my old Indiana friends was over to see me yesterday. He is now on the Yankton. I often wonder if any one ever hears from Percy. I wrote to him a few days ago. I may hear from him sometime this year if he does not forget to write. Mr. Brown was discharged and I think he went home. Our next port is Colon, and we leave here Monday. So as it is late I will make this somewhat brief. Give my best regards to all inquiring friends. Hoping to hear from you soon. I remain as ever.

CHAMP CLARK STORIES

Anecdotes Heard Both on and Off the Stump.

Querc Ways of Introducing Public Speakers—A Left Handed Compliment—One Orator Too Many. Squelching an Irish Interrogator. Concerning an Epitaph—Witty Retort of a Witness—Where One Lawyer Was Better Than Two—Hospitality Explained.

[Copyright, 1902, by Champ Clark.] There are introductions and introductions. In length they vary from one-half minute to an hour, in style from the ridiculous to the sublime, in spirit from the perfunctory to the enthusiastic. Sometimes the introducer contents himself with merely announcing the name of the speaker and his subject, which, I am inclined to believe after much experience, is the ideal form. Again, he will undertake to predict what the speaker will say, which is an unmitigated nuisance. Sometimes he makes the mistake of fancying that the audience has assembled to hear him and lays himself out for a great oration.

An Astonishing Introduction. Hon. Joseph J. Russell of Charleston, Mo., ex-speaker of the state house of representatives and a capital story teller, not long since related to me the following: "When Hon. Marsh Arnold was making his third race for congress, one night he spoke at Sikeston, and Hon. Elias Mills introduced him in this wise: 'Ladies and gentlemen, we have assembled here tonight to listen to the eloquence of our distinguished representative in congress. All sorts of men get there and deport themselves in all sorts of ways. The congressional money bags neglect their duties and put in their time skydiving around Washington seeing the sights, but our congressman, Hon. Marsh Arnold, is always at his post. He sits there, just like a knot on a log, an introduction which convulsed the audience and greatly embarrassed Hon. Marsh Arnold.'

An Effective Short Speech. Some time since in these cloakroom stories I gave samples of powerful short speeches.

Here is one by that prince of orators, Sergeant S. Prentiss of Mississippi, which, though printed before, is well worth printing again. He was once engaged in a political discussion on the stump with a gentleman who was wordy, dull and spoke against time so that Prentiss might speak at a disadvantage. It was nearly dark when Prentiss rose. At the same time a donkey in a neighboring pound began to bray and kept it up until Prentiss' friends were annoyed and his enemies delighted. When the donkey stopped, Prentiss, casting a comical glance at his antagonist, said, "I did not come here today to reply to two equally eloquent speeches?" Then he sat down, and his friends carried him from the stand in their arms.

A Witty Retort. One of the greatest humorists in Missouri is Major Henry A. Newman of Huntsville. He was a brave Confederate soldier and a rough and ready orator of great power. In his speeches during the campaign of 1900 he eschewed "the paramount issue" of imperialism. The major made a speech at Poplar Bluff, had a magnificent audience and was in fine fettle. He discussed finance and trusts with great eclat, lapped the Republicans in great shape and was coming down the home stretch in an easy canter when his serenity was disturbed by a voice inquiring, "How about the Philippines?" The brogue with which the question was put left no doubt as to the nativity of the gentleman seeking information.

The major paid no attention to his interrogator, but proceeded with his speech. "How about the Philippines?" came again, with an emphasis indicating that the gentleman was not to be ignored. The major's sense of humor came to his relief. With a perfect imitation of the brogue he replied: "My friend, I will tell you about the Philippines. I'll tell you confidentially what I'm in favor of doing with the Philippines. I'd trade the Philippines to Great Britain for Ireland, and then we could raise our own policemen!" which was received with a roar of laughter from the palpitating throng.

An Appreciable Difference. The dry as dusts can say what they please, but nevertheless and notwithstanding humor is a most valuable adjunct to oratory whether in the courtroom, on the stump or on the platform. Walter Williams, the brilliant and accomplished editor of the Columbia (Mo.) Herald, the model weekly newspaper of America, sometimes rests from his editorial labors by making a speech. Recently, to illustrate how differently the trusts affect their owners and the consumers, he told this anecdote: "Out in Kansas a woman died. Her relatives erected a tombstone to her memory, on which they placed the following epitaph: 'Here lies Mary Ann. She has gone to Abraham's bosom.' A way passed that way and wrote this addendum to the epitaph: 'That's good for Mary Ann, but it's devilish tough on Abraham!'"

An amusing story of how a witness sometimes gets the better of a lawyer is told by Colonel D. P. Dyer on Carly Wells. He was engaged in the trial of a case at St. Charles involving the validity of a will. An old farmer dressed in his homestead jeans was put on the stand as a witness. Wells asked him if he knew the deceased and his mental condition. "Yes," said the witness; "I knew him well. He was a pretty fair farmer, but he would never set the river on fire!" This answer angered Wells, and he said to the witness rather petulantly, "Well, sir, what do you mean about never setting the river on fire?"

"Well," said the witness, "suppose some one should ask me, 'Do you know Carly Wells and the condition of his mind?' I would answer by saying, 'Yes; he is a pretty fair lawyer, but he will never set the river on fire.'"

No further question was asked the witness.

Congratulations. Shortly after Colonel D. P. Dyer was admitted to the bar in Pike county he was appointed by the court to defend an old fellow by the name of Jones, who was indicted for enticing a slave to leave his master. The feeling in those days against abolitionists was very bitter. The case was tried and submitted to the jury. In a few minutes that body returned a verdict of guilty and assessed the punishment of Jones at two years in the state penitentiary. Johnson Hendrick, an old farmer, heard the verdict and immediately went to Jones and said: "Mr. Jones, I congratulate you." To which Jones replied, "Sir, I don't think there is anything to be congratulated for."

"Oh, yes," said Hendrick. "If you had had another lawyer like Dyer, you would have gone up for five years instead of two."

Hospitality Explained. John B. Henderson, formerly a United States senator from Missouri, is a self made man and attained his high position by and through his own indomitable pluck and energy. He began the battle of life poor and friendless, and while he was quite young he was apprenticed, or "bound out," to speak in the vernacular of that day, to a worthy farmer in Lincoln county by the name of Browning. Mr. Browning had a son by the name of Arthur, who was about the age of Henderson. The two grew up together until they were eighteen years of age. Henderson began the study of law while engaged in teaching a country school. Arthur remained on the farm of his father.

Henderson was admitted to the bar and began the practice of law. Soon after his admission he went to Troy, in Lincoln county, to attend court. One evening during the term of court he concluded to go out to his old master's to spend the night. Another young lawyer accompanied him. Reaching Browning's late in the evening, he found the family had eaten supper, and he and his friend were invited to sup alone. As a part of the supper there was placed before them a large crock of rich milk, with plenty of cream on it. Henderson and his friend drank all of the milk in the crock, and when they were through Henderson, with a satisfied air, pushed back from the table and in a complimentary way said:

"Arthur, that was very rich milk you gave us. When I lived here, we were required to skim off all the cream before drinking the milk."

Arthur, who had a way of drawing out his words, said: "That is true. And you would not have got that rich milk this evening if a rat had not been drowned in it."

Henderson and his friend, needless to say, were not in the best of health and spirits the balance of the night.

Governor W. J. Stone's Story. "You can't squelch a boy," said Governor Stone. "I have had some rich experiences with boys. At the beginning of my campaign against Warner in 1892 the Kansas City Star published the canard that I had not paid my road tax, and the report gained some credence among the Republicans of south Missouri. A short time afterward I spoke during the night at Joplin. There were torches galore, flambeau clubs and bands, and I was riding with local notables in a fine carriage drawn by four horses at the head of the procession. In passing close to a high building I noticed between me and the brick wall a ragged and dirty faced boy. He carried a smoking torch in his hand and was running beside the carriage, staring up in my face with a look evidently intended to wither. When I looked, he gave a rousing hurrah for Warner, and when I bowed to him he yelled with admirable sarcasm while still running: "You'd better go home, old boss, and pay your taxes instead of ridin' around here in four horse carriages. These streets are all paid for. He was reading me a lesson in citizenship. It's a way boys have."

Ma Was a Democrat. "Warner relates a similar experience to me. He was speaking at a picnic in south Missouri. He was provoked and interrupted several times by an urchin perched in a small tree near by who persisted in crying out in the most offensive manner possible: 'What's the matter with Stone? He's all right!'"

"Warner conceived what he thought a happy idea of making a point on his tormentor, and, turning to the boy in the tree, he said: "Fellow citizens, I don't know, but I will venture the assertion that that boy's daddy is a Democrat—an ideal Missouri Democrat—who sits on a rail fence, chews tobacco, spits and whittles while his crops make themselves, who is dead against everything new and lets his wife do the work."

"He thought his remarks would settle the matter; but, to his dismay, the boy in the tree yelled back: "You've got the old man sized up about right, cap, but he's a Republican. But ma's all right. She's a Democrat, and she's raisin' me." The major wilted, and the crowd laughed, while the boy yelled again: 'What's the matter with Stone? He's all right!'"

AMUSEMENTS.

The management of the Auditorium announces with pleasure the coming for one week, commencing next Monday night, of the well known Chicago Stock Company, in a varied extensive repertoire of new plays. The Chicago syndicate is sending its stock company upon the road, equipped far above the standard of the present week stand combination. Each play the Stock Company presents has been staged and costumed in an expensive manner and will undoubtedly draw a large crowd all next week. Special scenery is carried for many productions. There will be a change every night in the big refined vaudeville bill. Monday is ladies' free night. Prices 10, 20 and 30 cents.

After a run of one hundred nights at the Fourteenth Theatre in New York, David Higgins and George Waldron with their new and best play "Up York State" are filling the balance of a most successful season in the eastern states. No such unanimous praise has been accorded a rural play in New York City for many seasons. It hit the public fancy at the start and for the second time this year has been forced out in the height of a run of crowded houses. For a play to leave New York and return again to success the same season is an unprecedented thing to do and the mere fact that a play can do it is guarantee of great merit. This picturesque drama possesses "ie true ring of attractiveness" or it never could have secured such a hold on the New York public. The local management of the Auditorium has been fortunate in securing it for presentation in this city on Monday, March 17th.

ANOTHER VERSION. The tramp, he tackled a brand new bride And asked her for something to eat; "Will you give me some bread?" (but he meant a whole meal); She consented with smiles that were sweet. She brought him the half of a loaf, and said: "Here's some of my very own." He took it, then faltered: "I asked you for bread. And I what do you give me?—a stone!" There is many "a stone and gold brick" handed to the public also in a theatrical way, by the average traveling aggregation. A notable exception however is the company presenting "The Girl From Chili," which will play an engagement of one night in this city in the near future. Frederic Murphy who was with the Julia Marlowe company for a number of seasons is the leading man with the company and he wonders "If most men would be better and nobler if they could only have a chance to live up to the inscriptions on their tombstones."

HOW DICK STOOD BY HIS MOTHER

"We never have pancakes now," sighed wee Daisy, looking mournfully across the table at her brother. "But we have oatmeal, and it's so nice and hot," answered Dick, pressing his fingers to the outside of his bowl by way of warning them. "Bessie Warner has pancakes every morning. With lots and lots of maple sirup. We used to have good things when daddy was home. I wish he would come back." And Daisy drew a mile of a handkerchief from her apron pocket and held it to her blue eyes. "If that's all you want father home for"—Dick began indignantly. Then he stopped suddenly. "We've got mother," he added, lowering his voice. "But she's so sick."

"Dick, come here, please." The boy pushed his chair back from the table and entered an adjoining room.

"It was such a good breakfast you brought me, dear," his mother said with a tender smile as he stood beside her bed. "I don't see how you manage it, Dick." "You needn't think I am going to give you my recipe, ma'am," laughed the boy as he lifted the tray from the coverlet. "You're such a comfort, Dick," his mother answered. Then she added as he turned away, "I shall be thankful when I am able to make things comfy again for you and Daisy."

"Maybe I won't think it jolly, too," Dick declared, his face fairly beaming. "I am going to ask the doctor if I may sit up awhile today. And Dick, you won't forget to go to the postoffice this morning?"

Dick did not answer immediately. But, the threshold reached, he paused and said slowly:

"You won't count too much on getting a letter, mother?"

"No, I won't, dear. But I feel we shall hear from your father today." And Mrs. Foster's thin, white face lighted hopefully as her boy left her.

It was something to have a soldier father! How proudly Dick straightened himself!

"You're such a comfort, Dick," his mother answered.

ened whenever he thought of it! But it was more to have a sick mother depending upon him for certain things. It was this that made Dick stand by his mother as loyally as his father was standing by his country away off in the Philippines, where he had been sent a year before.

Several letters, some containing money, had come from the father to the cottage on Lincoln street, but for three months not a word had been heard from Mr. Foster. But, as old Dr. Hall said, "Where Dick is sunshine is." And the boy's cheery, brave spirit helped his mother to bear up during this anxious time far more than he ever dreamed of.

"No letters for you today, Dick," Mrs. Thompson at the village postoffice said when the boy asked for mail that morning.

A lump came suddenly into Dick's throat and his eyes acquired an unwonted dimness. How could he go back to his mother and watch the light die out of her face at the news he bore? She had been so sure there would be a letter.

"Come on, Dick. We're going nothing," said a voice at his elbow. Dick turned to find a schoolmate standing beside him.

"There's loads of 'em on Hickory hill. Come on."

For a moment Dick was tempted to yield. It would be easier going nuthing than facing his mother. Besides, it would be time enough to tell her the disappointing news later on. But only for a moment did Dick hesitate. Dick came of soldier stock, you will remember.

"I can't go today, Ned," he said, and, turning, made his way home.

His mother heard his footstep as he entered the kitchen and called him to her side.

Then Daisy danced out of the bedroom to meet him. "You've been so long, Dick!" she cried. "There is a letter from daddy. Mr. Thompson gave it to Dr. Hall to bring to mamma. There's money in it, and daddy is coming home, and mamma says we'll have pin!"

But Dick had fled past Daisy to his mother.

"Mrs. Thompson said there was no letter, and I was afraid to tell you, and—it's been so long since we saw father, and, oh, I'm so glad!"

Here Dick stopped suddenly and hid his face in the coverlet. But mothers don't tell, and Dick was only ten, you see, and sometimes it had been pretty stiff work keeping a brave front.

But by the time Daisy tiptoed back from the pantry, whither she had been to make sure that the griddle was quite ready to fry pancakes on, Dick's face was smiling again, and he hummed a bar of "When Johnny Comes Marching Home Again" as he made the big armchair ready for his mother with pillows and comforter and thought how good it would seem to have his father home again.—Marie Deacon Hanson in New York Herald.

CONSTANCE'S CANDY.

Why Troublesome Marshall Threw the Spoon Down in the Tub. "Marshall, come away from the stove!"

"No; want to see tandy." "Somebody do take that child away! The next thing we know he'll be sitting on the stove!"

Constance had her lap full of nuts and could not go to the aid of her small brother, so Arthur Conway picked that young man up in his arms, much to the latter's disgust, and set him on the tubs. Marshall immediately began to howl, and his sister threw him a handful of nuts to pacify him.

"Keep still, Marshall, and when the candy is done you shall have some."

"Have lot o' tandy?" "Yes, yes."

It being a rainy afternoon, Constance Ward was having a candy frolic in the spacious kitchen with half a dozen friends.

"Constance, that candy has got to be done. It's been cooking for five hours." "More or less," added Josie Everard.

"You certainly do exaggerate dreadfully, Florence, for it has been on just ten minutes," said Constance. "If you have nothing else to do, just help me shell these nuts."

Florence pulled a chair over near Constance and for awhile was very industrious shelling the nuts.

"Just look at Dan!" exclaimed Virginia Ross. "Isn't he polite?"

All eyes were turned upon Dan Ross, who was sitting by the window, with a book within four inches of his nose.

"Exceedingly so," said Arthur Conway; "but it's nothing unusual. I believe if Dan went to an evening ball he would take his book along."

"Who?" inquired Rob Allison, who had been down cellar getting some apples.

"Daniel, my lad," replied Arthur. Just then came a thud, followed by a howl. Marshall had fallen off the tubs.

"Say, Marshall," said Arthur, "run up stairs and see if your mother wants you."

"My muzzer has gone to see Tuzzin Tate," replied Marshall, with dignity. "Oh, I beg your pardon," said Arthur, returning Marshall to the tubs.

"I'm going to take that candy off," announced Florence.

"Well, I guess it's done," said Constance, "and so are the nuts."

The candy was poured into the buttered tins, the nuts laid over it and the spoon given to Marshall to snick. Then all the girls and boys adjourned to the parlor with their apples to wait for the candy to harden.

"It's waining," said Marshall. "Chestrnuts!" said Rob.

"Say, Arthur, run down stairs and see if that candy is hard," said Constance.

Arthur, used to doing whatever Constance said, obeyed. In a few minutes he returned with the pan and a knife. Evidently he had tasted it, for he was making a very wary face.

"Taste it, Constance. See if you like it. It seems to me you have mistaken the salt box for the sugar box."

Constance took a piece. "Why, Arthur Conway, I do believe I have."

The girls and boys crowded around Arthur to taste the candy, and, strange to say, none of them took a second piece. Constance seemed very unhappy about it, but she felt better when her guests assured her that they didn't care, and it just gave them something to laugh about.

"Funny Marshall didn't say something when he had the spoon," said Josie.

"I don't believe he ate it all," said Virginia. "He couldn't." "Let's ask him."

"Spoon down on tubs. Tandy bad," replied Marshall on being questioned. "Want dead tandy."

"Never mind, Marshall. The next time I'll taste everything before I put it in the pan," said Constance. "But, oh, dear, I wish I hadn't wasted so much time shelling those nuts!"—Jessie E. Wilcox in Brooklyn Eagle.

The Catbird. The catbird ranks high in the list of its songsters, notwithstanding its catlike calls. Its song, though not very strong, is sweet and may be heard at almost any time of the day. When their nest is threatened, the owners call all the other catbirds together, and each one tries to outdo the other in remonstrance.

The nest is well made of sticks, roots, weeds, grass and bits of bark and is lined with fine roots.

The eggs, three to five in number, are a dark greenish blue.

ORA HOWELL WHO WAS FORMER RESIDENT OF NEWARK.

Had Been Ill But There Was No Alarm
Over His Condition—Died at Frampton.

Frampton, O., March 6.—Mr. Ora Howell, son of Mr. William Howell, a well known and highly respected young man of this place, was found dead in the water closet on Wednesday evening. Mr. Howell had been complaining for several days of not feeling well, but otherwise was in the enjoyment of his usual health. He was aged about 30 years, and his death is supposed to be due to heart trouble, to which he was subject. The deceased was well known in Newark, where he was employed for several years in the service of the B. & O. railroad. He also worked for Judge Jerome Buchanan for a time. The funeral will take place from Perry Chapel Friday morning at 10 o'clock. He was a brother of Mrs. Frank Rinehart of Newark.

The Fourth's Election.

The men of the Fourth regiment, O. N. G., will vote for a colonel today, and there is no doubt that A. B. Coit will be elected to the position, which he has filled with distinguished honor. Whether he will accept is the only point at issue, and it is believed that this, too, will be settled in the affirmative.

Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman will be offered a peerage at the coronation. Were he to accept it it would pave the way to Lord Rosebery's return as the one and only leader of the Liberal party, with Mr. Asquith as his first lieutenant in the Commons. A peerage will be offered to Sir William Harcourt.

YOUNG MEN

Arrested on a Girl's Complaint Are Released, and Queer Stories are Being Told.

Mansfield, O., March 6.—A sensational condition of affairs exists here over pretty Anna Bieller, aged 16, who recently had Fred Saul arrested for alleged defamation of character. The girl afterward secured Saul's release from jail, where he was sent in lieu of a $200 bond. She said that she did not know what was in the affidavit.

Since the case was settled Frank Lay, a friend of Saul, is keeping the girl at his home. The girl's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Anton Kathrein, say that Saul and Lay have lured Anna from home, and that she was paid $25 for securing Saul's release.

Saul and Lay claim that the girl's parents tried to blackmail Saul, and because the girl got no more than $25 for the job they will not take her back home.

All of the parties are Hungarians and speak little English. The old lady says her burdens are more than she can bear. She adopted Anna Bieller on the day of her birth. On the day of Anna's leaving home she received a letter from Hungary saying that the girl's two sisters were burned to death. Mrs. Kathrein was about to send for the girls, and had earned the money to do so by taking in washing. The case will likely be investigated by the next grand jury.

TOLSTOI

MAY HAVE BEEN DEAD FOR SEVERAL WEEKS.

Russian Exile in New York Receives Letter Which Says the News is Suppressed.

New York, March 6.—If the information conveyed to Aaron Schick, a Russian political exile in this city, be true Count Leo Tolstoi, the great Russian reformer, is now dead instead of at the point of death in the Crimea, as given out in press dispatches from Russia. Schick is a lawyer at No. 203 Broadway. He came to this country several years ago because the Russian Government drove him out of his own country.

But Schick has kept in touch with affairs in Russia. He got a letter yesterday from Odessa, written by his cousin, which tells of Tolstoi's death. This cousin says that the Russian government is keeping the news a secret until after the religious celebrations of March 7 are held.

This is expected to be a very critical time. There have been great military preparations to prevent an outbreak among the students all over Russia. If it were known that Tolstoi was dead the chances of an outbreak would be much greater.

According to Mr. Schick's informant Tolstoi has been dead for some time. "The newspapers have nothing about it," says the writer, "but it is true, as a friend of mine, who has been with Tolstoi, has written me about it from Yalta, in the Crimea. The news is slowly spreading and a great tumult is expected. The very air smells of revolution."

The writer goes on to say that General Vannosky, who gave up the War ministry to take charge of the Ministry of Education, has closed half the universities in the country for fear of riots on the day of the religious festivals. The troops are being massed at all danger points, and the secret police are very active. On the other hand, the students and workmen are plotting to make trouble and for this reason the government strong as it is, does not dare to let the people know that their idol—Tolstoi—is dead. The letter conveying the information was written February 11.
